CORRESPONDENCE

TO THE EDITOR:

As there has been so much confusion relative to the Iowa session laws, a statement in regard to them may be of interest to librarians and those who make use of the statute laws of the various states.

The legislature of Iowa, at the regular session of 1915, adopted an innovation by discontinuing the publication of the session laws (except joint resolutions and appropriation acts), and authorized instead the publication of the Supplemental Supplement to the code. The Supplemental Supplement proved satisfactory so far as the compiled laws were concerned but the discontinuance of the session laws caused so much inconvenience that the next legislature restored their publication and authorized the issuance of the laws of 1917 in regular form, bound in boards, and fixed the price of sale at $1.00 per copy to non-residents of the State. Provision was also made for the publication of the session laws of 1915. Both editions were limited. The 1917 edition was soon exhausted. There is still a good supply of the 1915 edition at $1.00 per copy.

A. J. SMALL,
Law Librarian.

NOTES

A RARE LAW MAGAZINE FOUND

The discovery of a copy of a very rare law magazine in the State Library a few days ago will be of interest to bibliographers and members of the local bar. In July, 1866, members of the Albany bar started the publication of a law magazine which they called the "Law Review." It was to have been a quarterly, but was discontinued after the first number appeared. Weed, Parsons & Company, of Albany, were the publishers. The copies printed seemed to have quickly disappeared, and for the last forty years it has been believed that but one copy was in existence. This was in the library of the late Nathaniel C. Moak, one of Albany's most prominent attorneys of former days, and the owner of one of the largest private law libraries in the country. Mr. Moak's library was purchased at his death by Cornell University and his copy of the "Law Review" passed with it to the Law Library of that institution. An annotation on the cover states: "Only number believed to be in existence." John T. Fitzpatrick, Law Librarian of the State Library, in the hope that another copy might still exist without the knowledge of the owner, has been searching through the libraries of older Albany attorneys. His labors were rewarded a few days ago when he discovered among some miscellaneous law pamphlets that had been given to the State Library by the Albany Law school recently, a second copy. It is in fairly good condition, with paper covers, and the leaves still uncut. It is designated Vol. 1, No. 1, and contains 128 pages. It consists of an introduction and five articles, all unsigned except two, which were written by Joel Tiffany, who was State Reporter at that time.

An address delivered before the Section on legal education, American Bar Association, Saratoga Springs, Sept. 4, 1917.

Advocates arranging law libraries according to historical periods, under each of which there would be alphabetical groups of text-books reports, statutes, digests, abridgments, histories, trials and biographies. Describes some of the most important early English treatises.

Cross, William J.

The lawyer's burden. The alarming increase and multiplicity of law books, their high cost and rapid depreciation, and a suggested remedy.

(In Lawyers' Review, v. 2, no. 1, p. 10-15, Oct., 1916.)

The suggested remedies are (1) Curtailment of the decisions themselves, (2) Codification of both the written and unwritten law, and (3) Joint user of libraries and co-operative buying.

Early English law books printed before 1600.

I. Year Books. II. Treatises, digests, etc. (In Library of Congress, Report, 1905, p. 163-173.)

Most of the year-books listed were formerly the property of William V. Kellen, of Boston.

Greenleaf, Simon

Catalogue of a select law library including the dates and prices of the latest edition of each work, prepared, in 1854, by the late Simon Greenleaf, author of Greenleaf's Evidence, and carefully revised and enlarged, in January, 1855, by John Livingston. (In Livingston's Monthly Law Magazine for 1855, v. 3, p. 80-85.)

A subject list of treatises and text-books. "It is divided into two classes. Class I includes those most useful and important for persons of limited means. Class II includes those highly useful but not indispensable, and auxiliary to those in the first class. Those deemed most essential in each class are marked thus (*)."

Towns, John C.

A partial legal bibliography. (In his Law books and how to use them. Austin, Austin Publishing Co., 1909, p. 169-186.)

Pages 169-172, U. S. statutes and court reports. Pages 173-186, Texas constitutions, statutes, criminal statutes, digests, court reports and treatises.

Winfield, Percy H.

Some bibliographical difficulties of English law. (In Law Quarterly Review, v. 33, p. 190-200, April, 1914.)

Reviews existing bibliographies and the difficulties which attended their compilation. Recommends as work for the Selden Society:

"1. That a comparative catalogue of all annual additions in Great Britain, Europe, or America, to our legal literature be made and revised annually.

2. That thorough indexes of such publications as Rotuli Curiarum Regis be made.

3. That a catalogue be made of MSS. which deal principally with legal topics, and of which specific notices have already been published. . . . Such a catalogue might be combined with a bibliography of printed law books."
